CS KickStart is a one week introductory course for incoming Berkeley women who are interested in math, science, or engineering. Approximately 50 participants will come to Berkeley a week before Golden Bear Orientation to participate in a unique set of activities. Students will learn how to program, find out about the various domains of computer science, and meet computer science students and professionals. We offer this program free of charge to students. Participants will be housed on campus and will experience a variety of activities including:

PROGRAMMING LABS
Students will acquire basic computer programming skills and work on a team project.

COMPUTER SCIENCE
Talks on security, graphics, computer systems, computational biology and data will be hosted.

COMPUTER SCIENTISTS
Alumnae in industry and academia will talk to students about their job as computer scientists.

CAMPUS LIFE
Information sessions and mentoring on navigating classes and resources will be offered to participants.

FIELD TRIPS
Students will visit one or multiple Silicon Valley companies to explore example work environments for a computer scientist.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES
Students will have fun during lots of social activities held to foster a welcoming and friendly community.

SPONSORSHIP FAQS

My company is donating! When and where do we send the money?

We accept donations year round. Please email cskickstart@gmail.com indicating your interest in a sponsorship package. However, in order to be featured on the program website and T-shirts, a donation should be sent by no later than May 10, 2019.

When is the Industry Panel?

The Industry panel will take place during the week of CS Kickstart. Tentatively, it will take place between Sunday, August 11 to Friday, August 17th. As the date nears, we will release further information about event logistics.

What Should I Expect from the Industry Panel?

Ideally, we’d like our panelists to share what led them to the computer science field and to their particular position in the company they represent. Professional tips, life advice, and career interests are topics that are also encouraged. The CS Kickstart organizers will prepare questions about your professional and personal experiences and then the panel will be open to questions from student participants.

For any additional questions, please contact cskickstart@gmail.com

Thank you!
